The Annual Report of the Chief Intelligence Officer.

A Vast Amount of Information Relative to Warships - The Nations Spending Many Millions of Dollars on Vessels Under Construction.

"Notes on Naval Progress," the annual publication of the Office of Naval Intel-ligence, just issued, is one of the most interesting that has ever been prepared It deals with a variety of subjects relating to foreign navies and shows that Capt. Charles D. Sigsbee, the Chief Intelligence Officer, and his assistants in Washington and abroad have been alive to the value of what is being done by foreign countries to extend their influence on the sea.

The seven chapters of "Notes on Ships and Torpedo Boats," by Lieut. Harry Phelps, treat in a comprehensive way of vessels building, ordered, and proposed; of steam trials, the reconstruction of old ships, the sheathing of ships, coaling rec-ords, and marine casualties. Lieut. Thomas Snowden is the writer of the "Notes on Ordnance and Armor," which include chapters on target practice and exploless telegraphy are by Lieut, R. L. R. writes of navy leagues, the naval mancuvres of 1900, and the naval estimates of foreign Powers for the fiscal year 1901-

Lieutenant Phelps shows that since the last annual report Austria has laid down one armored cruiser and launched one battleship and one cruiser of the third class. Denmark has hid down one thirdcians battleship and launched a torpedo transport. England has laid down two first-class battleships, seven armored cruisers, two second-class protected cruiscraisers, two second-class protected craisers, two sloops, and two shallow-draft gunboats, and has launched four first-class battleships, seven armored cruisers, three sloops, one shallow-draft gunboat, twelve torpedo boat destroyers, and three torpedo boats. France has laid down three armored cruisers, six torpedo boat destroyers, eight submarine boats, and four torpedo boats, and has launched four armored cruisers, one despatch transport. five torpedo boat destroyers, eleven tor-pedo boats, and four submarine boats. Germany has laid down one first-class battleship, one armored cruiser, and one gunboat, and has launched three battleships of the first class, one armored cruiser, four protected cruisers of the torpedo boats and has launched one thirdbattleship and three torpedo boats. Italy has launched one first-class battleship and six torpedo boat destroyers. Japan has launched one first-class battleship and two torpedo boats. Russia has taid down three first-class battleships, one coast defence ironclad, one protected cruiser of the first class and one of the second class, one training transport, and two torpedo boat destroyers, and has launched four first-class battleships, two armored cruisers, two second-class protected cruisers, one gunboat, and seven torpedo boat destroyers. Spain launched one armored cruiser and Sweden has launched one coast defence ship. One of the most significant pieces of in-formation in Lieutenant Phelps' article is that the large increase in the German may will have been made before 1916, the year originally set for the completion of the naval programme. The last of the new vessels for the active battle flect, he says, will be laid down in 1916, and after that year but one new battleship will be laid down, and that for the non-active fleet. "So that it will be seen," he adds, "that the proposed German battle fleet will be practically complete when the vessels laid down in 19% shall be finished, the new cruisers laid down after 1965 be ing either for foreign service or the non-

Owing to grave difficulties in the Ministry of Marine and to those experienced in securing the necessary appropriations the building of the new battleships by Italy has been practically at a standstill, but Lieutenant Pheips says that hese difficulties are believed to have been surmounted. In June, 1990, it is practical-y decided to lay down four ships of medi-im type between battleships and armor-el cruisers.

um type between battleships and armored cruisers.

Japan since her war with China has increased her tonnage in naval vessels from 20,00 to 20,000. This expansion, which Lieutenant Phelps describes as "enormous," has taken place in less than six years. He mentions a report that owing to suspicion of the intention of certain Powers in the Far East, Japanese naval circles are considering a proposal to augment the navy to the extent of either 250,000 or 400,000. It is generally believed in Japan, he says, that the scheme will be realized in the near ruture. The second-class cruisers, eight torpedo boast destroyers and sixteen torpedo boast, have been ordered by Japan.

ne graphic tables prepared by Lieu-ti Knepper show the naval tonnage and building, for the different class-ships of the seven principal naval rs. The vessels included are battlesers, unprofected cruisers, armored coast defence vessels, special vessels, torpedo vessels, torpedo beats, and submarines. England heads the list with 47 vessels, having a tomage of 1,768,855; France, although showing more vessels than England, 484, has a tonnage of only 781,665; Russia has 341 vessels with a tonnage of 52,546; the United States is fourth on the list, 135 vessels, with a tonnage of 47,494; Germany, 261 vessels, with a tonnage of 48,462; Italy 231 vessels with a tonnage of 48,462; Italy 231 vessels, with a tonnage of 251,668.

The dog reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr at their Newport home was hardly the success it had been hoped it would be, as many who had been invited failed to appear. There were only two men present, Messrs. Creighton Webb hostess had prepared for the dogs and a special table had been set for them under a small tent on the lawn. The owners had the greatest difficulty in reconciling "It is alleged that the orginal charge of drunks." was some time before order was restored, one or two of the dogs having a special antipathy for each other, and it was with difficulty they were prevented from break-ing up the party in a row. The dogs had on fancy collars with bells and take hats ing up the party in a row. The dogs said on fancy collars with bells and they hats and were arranged on stools around the low table. The table was piled with dog breads and sweets, but as they were politely brought up dogs they are very sparingly. Their mistresses were seated at tables near by, but they were so engressed in their labors of keeping the doggles from eating each other that the delicacles provided for them were left aimost untouched. After the luncheon the better trained of the dogs were put through a series of exercises such as jumping, standing on their hind legs and waltzing and other tricks. The most obstreperous pups were the terrier of Mrs. Belmont and pug of Mrs. Burke-Roche, which insisted upon mixing up things until finally they had to be kept apart to ensure the continuance of the recognition. There were prizes for the dogs consisting of fancy collars, bells, and embroidered blankets.

BRIDEGROOM HITS A PASTOR. Objected to the Minister Kissing His

Joseph McDuff and Miss Agnes Tulley went to the residence of the minister the other day to get married. The ceremony was performed and as was the custom in this section the minister kissed the bride. The next instant McDuff's fist shot out and caught the minister in the jaw, laying him limp in the corner of the room. Friends seized the angry bridegroom and explained to him that this was the custom.

McDuff was mortified and as a peace offering drew forth two $19 notes, which he tendered to the dazed and surprised clergyman. this section the minister kissed the bride.

NATIONAL GUARD AFFAIRS.

The Discharged Men Planning to Appeal to the Court.

The Summary Action of the Commanding General at Camp Ordway Severely Criticised - Guardsmen Going to Buffalo for District Day.

Trouble in the Engineer Corps of the District militia, which broke out during the recent encampment of the National Guard at Leesburg, and which resulted in the summary discharge of five men, members of the corps, has not yet been settled. Steps will be immediately taken to carry the case of the discharge of the men into the courts, and the action of the commanding general, which is alleged to have been taken without due consideration of the question of law involved, it is expected, will probably be revised and the men reinstated in the Guard. The militiamen discharged were Corporal Edwin F. Lord, Private E. T. Bishop, and second-class Privates W. E. Warfield, Fred E. Pusey, and Reginald Mor-ris. After their return from Leesburg the men received their discharges, as published at the time in The Times. The summary action of the National Guard authorities has been the cause of considerable ill feeting in Ghard circles since the return from the enchappment and the action of the commanding general has been freely criticised. The men were discharged "for the good of the service," yet, though they have made efforts, they have not yet been informed as to the nature of the charges upon which the ac tion in dismissing them was based. The Adjutant General's Office, it is said, has refused to give them the information. The clause in the act establishing the Na-tional Guard of the District of Columbia under which the charges were probably made is as follows:

All of the men discharged, when seen in regard to the matter, expressed them-selves as being incensed at the manner in which they had been treated. The men say that their imprisonment was in the nature of spite work. "We reached the camp at Leesburg on Thursday afternoon, July 18," said E. T. Bishop last night. "The next night I will admit that there was rather a 'rough house' in our tent, but I deny that there was anyone there under the influence of liquor. objected to being arrested and placed in the guardhouse, as we believed in a measure we deserved it. There is a rule that a man cannot be confined in the guardhouse longer than twenty-four hours unless charges have been preferred against him. Lieutenant Hayes did not preferany charges against us. Notwithstanding this fact we were kept in the guardhouse entil Sunday morning.

"On Sunday we went for a walk to Clark's Gap, a distance of five miles. We had only a few bottles of beer. On our return to camp Lieutenant Hayes again placed us under arrest. There were six men in the party, but Lieutenant Hayes singled out four of us for special punishment. A few days later, on dress parade, Lieutenant Hayes made a public address, in which he advised us to seek different commands. Otherwise, he said, he would have to ask for our resignations."
